Executive Summary

Pin2Win's near-term growth should be driven by direct partner development: visiting indoor golf simulator locations, demonstrating a simple monthly competition model, and closing low-friction pilot partnerships.

Core pitch

Pin2Win helps indoor golf locations run monthly closest-to-pin and long-drive competitions. Players scan the location QR code, enter the challenge, pay through Pin2Win, play on the simulator, and the venue gets location-level revenue reporting.

Primary objective

Close 3 to 5 pilot partner locations in the first 30 days.

Primary audience

Independent indoor golf venues, golf bars, teaching studios, club fitters, and private simulator lounges.

Primary offer

A 30-day launch pilot with QR codes, signage, staff script, and tracked revenue by location.

Primary proof

Paid entries, repeat visits, player engagement, location revenue, and reusable social content.

Why This Works

- " Simulator venues need reasons for players to return between leagues.
- " Monthly challenges are easier to explain than full league formats.
- " QR entry keeps staff involvement light.
- " Location-level reporting makes the revenue story tangible.
- " Leaderboards, winners, and near misses create natural marketing content.

Ideal Partner Profile

Early partner outreach should prioritize locations that already have player traffic, repeat customers, and a manager or owner who values events and community.

Partner Type	Why It Fits	Priority
Independent indoor golf venues	Flexible decision-making, recurring players, event potential.	Highest
Golf bars and simulator lounges	Food and beverage upside, social groups, event-night energy.	Highest
Club fitting and teaching studios	Golf-focused customers and instructors who can promote competition.	High
Country clubs with simulator rooms	Strong member base, but may require longer approval cycles.	Medium
Apartment or community simulator rooms	Useful later once the model has stronger proof.	Later

Qualification Checklist

- " Multiple simulator bays or steady simulator usage.
- " Active leagues, lessons, fittings, events, or repeat player groups.
- " Visible signage areas near front desk, bar, or bays.
- " Owner, GM, or event manager can make partnership decisions.
- " Staff is willing to mention the challenge during check-in.
- " Location has social media or an email list for launch promotion.

Partner Value Proposition

Incremental revenue

Paid entries create a new revenue stream tied directly to the partner location.

More repeat visits

Monthly competitions give players a reason to come back and improve their score.

Simple staff workflow

Staff points players to QR signs. Pin2Win handles entry, payment, and reporting.

Marketing content

Winners, leaderboards, and prize pots become reusable social and email content.

Recommended Pilot Offer

Lead with a low-friction revenue-share pilot for the first partner group. This reduces resistance and lets Pin2Win build proof before introducing setup fees or monthly platform fees.

Offer	Partner Commitment	Pin2Win Commitment
30-day pilot	Display QR signage, brief staff, mention the challenge to players.	Create location setup, QR codes, signage assets, and revenue log.
Revenue share	Promote the challenge on-site and through owned channels.	Track paid entries and provide monthly reporting.
Launch support	Pick a launch date and share venue details.	Provide launch copy, social assets, and staff script.

Field Visit Strategy

The first visit is not meant to close every location. The goal is to identify decision-makers, learn the venue's current event model, give a short demo, and schedule a follow-up conversation with the owner or GM.

Opening line

We help indoor golf locations run monthly closest-to-pin and long-drive competitions using QR codes. Players scan, enter, pay, and compete. The location gets tracked revenue and a reason for players to come back.

Questions To Ask

- " Do you currently run leagues, contests, or event nights?
- " Which days or times are slower than you would like?
- " Do your players respond well to competitive formats?
- " Who handles events, marketing, or promotions?
- " Would a monthly QR-based challenge be useful if setup was simple?
- " How do you currently communicate with regular players?

Materials To Bring

- " One-page partner flyer.
- " QR demo card.
- " Sample location dashboard and revenue screenshots.
- " Sample poster or table tent.
- " Simple pilot proposal.

Week-By-Week Partner Development Schedule

Week	Focus	Actions	Target Outcome
1	Sales kit	Create flyer, demo script, sample QR card, FAQ, launch checklist, and pilot offer.	Partner kit ready.
2	Target list	Build list of 25 to 50 simulator venues with contact, website, social, bay count, and notes.	Prioritized outreach list.
3	First visit wave	Visit 8 to 12 venues. Identify decision-makers, qualify fit, show quick demo.	5 to 8 warm follow-ups.
4	Follow-up demos	Send thank-you messages, demo links, and pilot one-pagers. Schedule owner demos.	3 to 5 serious prospects.
5	Pilot close	Offer 30-day pilot, confirm revenue share, collect location details and bay names.	1 to 3 signed pilots.
6	Partner setup	Create locations in admin portal, generate QR codes, prepare signage and staff script.	Launch-ready venues.
7	Launch support	Install signage, brief staff, publish launch posts, visit during peak hours.	First paid entries.
8	Learn and expand	Review entries, revenue, objections, signage placement, and staff adoption.	Improved second wave.

Objection Handling

Objection	Response
We already run leagues.	That is a strength. Pin2Win is lighter than a league and gives casual players a way to compete without committing to a full schedule.
Will this be hard for staff?	No. Staff only needs to point players to the QR code. Pin2Win handles entry, payment, and tracking.
Do we need new hardware?	No. The partner uses existing simulator bays. Pin2Win adds QR entry, reporting, and challenge structure.
How do we know our revenue?	Each partner has location-specific QR codes and a dependent revenue log.
What if players share the E6 code?	The E6 code can be shared, but prize eligibility is tied to paid Pin2Win entries and verification.
